Scenario 1: Researching using the Library Catalog

Faculty is writing a book on local historical figure, Jackie Robinson. While she is visiting New York, she will be taking advantage of all the resources she could find in the New York Public Library system. Her main targets are primary sources and secondary sources in all forms of media.

Jackie Robinson : American hero (2013)

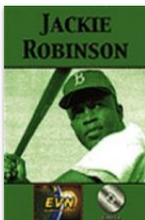

By Robinson, Sharon

First of all, there is a lot of information to take in. the list format is very neat and shows relevant information in a very stylistic way

LAPL's filter on the left makes finding certain types of resources or a specific author relatively easy.

One can also sort the materials by relevance and view the results as a flow instead of list

If I didn't look closely, I would have neglected this function...It seems like it's not of important even though I know it would come in handy later on when I need to backtrack to the results list

I am going to place this DVD on hold

Clean and explicit instructions even before actually seeing the materials. In 3 steps, the process of accessing the resources is explained thoroughly

Probably the cleanest categorization I have seen in a while. I think LAPL has a rich library of E-contents and providers
